

EPHELS Copyright Transfer Form

The articles may be used for research, teaching, and private study purposes. Any substantial or systematic reproduction, redistribution, reselling, loan, sub-licensing, systematic supply, or distribution in any form to anyone is expressly forbidden. Authors alone are responsible for the contents of their articles. The journal owns the copyright of the articles. However, within the framework of Creative Commons (CC) copyright license, authors can use their published works in non-profit environments and share them on their own platforms on the internet. The publisher shall not be liable for any loss, actions, claims, proceedings, demand, or costs or damages whatsoever or howsoever caused arising directly or indirectly in connection with or arising out of the use of the research material. All authors are requested to disclose any actual or potential conflict of interest including any financial, personal or other relationships with other people or organizations regarding the submitted work.

The author (s) guarantees that the submitted article is his/her/their original research. All authors participating in this study assumed public responsibility and confirmed that the article was not submitted for another journal. All the articles in the article do not violate the existing copyright rules and intellectual property rights of any person or organization. The article meets the ethical standards applicable to the research discipline.

The authors cannot withdraw the article they have uploaded to EPHELS journal and upload it to another journal without the approval of the journal editor.

Authors are responsible for obtaining written permission to include any images or artwork for which they do not hold copyright in their articles, or to adapt any such images or artwork for inclusion in their articles. The copyright holder must be made explicitly aware that the image(s) or artwork will be made freely available online as part of the article under a Creative Commons “Attribution 4.0 International” license.
